Preservation Issues

By David Preziosi

The Alamo Plaza Hotel Courts sign was removed from the site a couple of weeks ago. The sign has been placed in storage until it can be determined what to do with it, whether that be returning it to the original site or relocating it to another site. A website has been created with a petition for the sign's return to the site and can be visited at www.savethealamo.org.

There is no news on the eligibility of the Braniff Operations and Maintenance Base for the National Register of Historic Places. The Keeper of the National Register has not made a final determination of the eligibility of the building for the National Register after the Texas Historical Commission determined it was eligible and the Federal Aviation Administration said it was not eligible.
lay historians on topics related to the theme: The Unusual Side of Dallas: Unique Personalities, Impossible Dreams, Unexpected Landmarks, and Lingering Legends.

Although Dallas often has a reputation as a rather serious, business-minded city, it has nurtured plenty of colorful figures (such as H.L. Hunt) and surprising endeavors (like navigating the Trinity River). Registered city landmarks include an all-concrete house built more than a hundred years ago by a man who believed in reincarnation. Popular legends include the mysterious "Lady of White Rock Lake." The conference planners hope to enlighten and entertain attendees with such out-of-the-ordinary stories.

All papers must be based on original research and must not have been presented or published elsewhere. The best papers will be published in a subsequent issue of Legacies: A History Journal for Dallas and North Central Texas. Those interested in presenting papers should submit a brief summary of their proposal by July 1, 2013, to "Dallas History Conference, 1515 S. Harwood St., Dallas, TX 75215," or by email to: mvhazel@sbcglobal.net. Those selected will be notified by August 1, 2013. The 2014 Dallas History Conference will be held on Saturday, January 25, 2014.
Dallas Landmarks Program Turns Forty!

Celebrate with the DCFA!

2013 marks the 40th anniversary of the City of Dallas Landmarks program! To celebrate 40 years of the program the Dallas Center for Architecture will be holding an exhibit from May 7th until June 29th to explore some of the most important buildings and neighborhoods in Dallas history. They'll look at the process for designating a landmark, how that process has evolved over four decades and how the Dallas program fits into the context of the national preservation movement. It will also look at some of Dallas most majestic icons which have never been named historic landmarks at the city level.

To open the exhibit the DCFA will host a reception as they celebrate the rich architectural legacy of our city. The reception and exhibit will take place at the Dallas Center for Architecture from 6:00-8:00 p.m. on May 7th. A $10 donation is requested at the door. Please RSVP to info@DallasCFA.com and include "Landmarks" in the subject line.

Their latest addition is the street light standard from Dealey Plaza, notable for its possible link to the JFK assassination.

Director's Letter

By David Preziosi, Executive Director

It is time to celebrate as May is Preservation Month! Preservation organizations across the country, both large and small, will take the time to celebrate history and historic places. Preservation Month was begun by the National Trust for Historic Preservation and each year selects a theme for the month, which this year is "See! Save! Celebrate!" At Preservation Dallas we are celebrating Preservation Month with our 14th annual Preservation Achievement Awards on May 15th! This event will showcase the outstanding projects and people involved in historic preservation in Dallas. This year's awards will also include a special tribute to The Sixth Floor Museum at Dealey Plaza for their work in preserving one of the most recognized historic places in Dallas, and being an impartial forum for exploring the memory and effects surrounding the assassination of President Kennedy.

As we celebrate Preservation Month we also need to think about who are the preservationists in Dallas. There are many that come easily to mind like Preservation Dallas, Dallas Landmarks Commission, Dallas Historical Society, Dallas Heritage Village, and the numerous historic neighborhood organizations across the city. The largest numbers of preservationists in our city are those that live in an old house, which may or may not be in a historic district, and who toil away at maintaining their house and its character. They help to maintain some of the most interesting parts of Dallas, our historic neighborhoods, which have so much character and charm. Then there is the group of people that may not believe they are preservationist, but really are! They are the ones that may live in a newer house but shop, work, or dine in a historic building. Their support of those businesses helps maintain historic commercial buildings across the city contributing a vibrant mix of historic places to visit!

So this month remember to come to the Preservation Achievement Awards to help us celebrate those who have done outstanding preservation work! Then go out in the community and See! the historic sites of Dallas, maybe Save! one by living in a historic place or supporting a business in one, and then Celebrate! the historic places that make Dallas a unique place to live and visit!
